Our vision is to create hydrogen from a sustainable source. As we have worked on hydrogen production from the sun, we see great advantages to be part of a community that is dedicated to sustainable hydrogen energy. We have been helping developers, projects, factories, refineries, and manufacturers in the development of technologies and solutions for the hydrogen economy. We have examined a wide range of technologies to reduce the environmental burden of producing hydrogen and to reduce the associated costs. We think the first step is to educate the public and policymakers about the benefits and costs of green hydrogen energy. Hydrogen fuels have the potential to be one of the most sustainable sources of energy, but in the past few years, the price of hydrogen has inflated due to the lack of infrastructure. To offset some of these costs, we have developed H2Fix which uses solar energy to produce hydrogen using electrolysis or autothermal reforming technology. We see H2Fix in a portable package that can use sunlight to power production at remote locations. H2Fix is scalable and high-efficiency, which makes it attractive to mass markets. We are in the process of developing a hydrogen supply chain so that individuals and businesses can power their own homes, while trading surplus production. We are a market-oriented firm, and we continue to explore ways to bring the benefits of green hydrogen energy to the public.1.
