Psychiatric comorbidities of migraine. Migraine is a disabling chronic disease affecting 3%-13% of the population worldwide. Migraine is associated with depression, anxiety, and sleep disturbance. These psychiatric comorbidities can cause disability and can significantly decrease the patient's quality of life. Comorbid psychiatric disorders may influence the chronicity, severity, and disability of migraine. The treatment of migraine and psychiatric comorbidities is challenging. Comorbid psychiatric disorders may also increase the risk of suicidal ideation and suicidal behavior in patients with migraine. the wrong people.” “After learning that the four players had been injured, the exclusion of the whole team is, well, unacceptable,” says Ms. Kang. “Since the players are competing in university tournaments, at least they should have been able to play some matches. Instead, they couldn’t even take part in one. It’s a bit troublesome.” In light of the Seoul City Dassin prosecutors’ decision to not press charges against the four players who won the women’s ice hockey tournament, the Seoul City Dassin Prosecutors’ Office has said that they will stand by their decision not to charge the players. According to the prosecutors, it is clear that the players competed without a serious intent to harm others. The prosecutors have further noted that they don’t have anything against the three KBS agents for failing to report that Mr. Jang was being beaten. On August 30, Dassin prosecutors announced their decision to drop charges against the four players who had competed in the women’s tournament. “We haven’t found any evidence of intent to harm or criminal negligence.” said Ms. Lee Hyo-jin, a member of the Women’s Ice Hockey Team Lawyers’ Committee. “We will not criticize the prosecutors’ decision.” Mr. Jang’s mother accepts the judgment, but she is far from satisfied. “I just feel that we’ve been toyed with,” she says. “Nothing has changed with all the expenses I’ve spent since the alleged gang beating took place.” Although she feels more secure than before, she seems almost desperate to continue her fight. “I’ve been watching the news and getting updates, but I’ve still lost sleep. I hope that

The capital, which has seen a violent crime wave in recent years, has begun to see a steady drop in homicides. From Oct. 1 through July 7 this year, including fatal shootings, there have been 27 homicides in the city, compared with 39 during the same period last year, according to an analysis by the Chicago Sun-Times. The clearance rate for murder, which officials say has hit a 10-year high, is also up 5.5 percent over the same time period last year, according to data from the Chicago Police Department. “I was a little surprised,” Mayor Lori Lightfoot said of the uptick in homicides. “I don’t want to get too excited about it because of all the other bad news we have, but it was certainly good news. It’s a good sign that we’re getting more tip-offs to the cops.” Lightfoot emphasized that more people are being shot and killed, and that police are being sent to more of them. “But there are just as many that are coming in, for whatever reason, that are not ending up with someone dying,” she said. The 15 homicides this year alone that already have been attributed to the Halloween shooting in South Shore have occurred in or near the Englewood and Woodlawn neighborhoods. Police have said the 27 homicides in the city this year were from nine different gang-related factions. Twenty-one of the victims were from the main gangs — the Chano gang in the West Englewood neighborhood, the Gangster Disciples in the West Side, the Latin Kings in the South Side, the Vice Lords in the Southwest Side, the Gangster Disciples in the Southwest Side, the Insane Deuces in the East Side, the Black Disciples in the Far South Side, the Vice Lords in the West Side and the Warlords in the South Side. The last time there were so many gang-related killings in a single year was in 2006, when police shot a record 55 people in 28 days, killing 49 of them. During that Halloween weekend, one person was killed in a shooting Friday night and another died the following night. Meanwhile, this year’s homicide clearance rate and a little-known shooting on June 22 that also claimed the life of a young man will be among key metrics used by some city officials to draw comparisons with previous years. “The
