Keyboard Macro for fast text editing. You can paste text, translate, format and... Take back control of your camera with LG's G5 flagship smartphone LG's G5 is one of the best flagship smartphones out there, with the latest in-house 64-bit quad-core processor, display with a 5.3-inch full-HD+ screen, support for dual-SIM and a 13MP dual-camera setup that lets you take crisp selfies and record high quality videos in just a snap. With all the specs to cater for every kind of user, how about learning how to master the power of the LG G5? Continue reading to find out more about the main features and take care of your device! 5.6-inch Full-HD+ Display First of all, the most important thing about the LG G5 is that it has a 5.6-inch full-HD+ display. This means that there is a crisp resolution of 2,160 x 1,080 pixels, which gives a great viewing experience. The QHD resolution on the iPhone 7 Plus is great, but this one goes even higher! In addition to that, the LG G5 has support for HDR10, which means that images will appear far more vivid than the usual. Samsung recently introduced their curved edge display, the Galaxy S7 Edge. However, it appears that LG is one step ahead, as the LG G5 has a curved edge screen. LG may not be the only one of course, but this phone is definitely the one that boasts the best in the industry. Not only does it look good, but it is also super thin with a thickness of only 6.1mm, which is just 2.8mm thick. Hear the audio with the Dynamic Speaker For the first time, LG has included the new Dynamic Speaker on the G5, which automatically adjusts the bass based on the audio and lets you hear the music in more detail. If you want to experience the best out of the audio content, then you need to make sure that the sound is not being clipped. The LG G5 is equipped with the Bang & Olufsen (B&O) trademark speakers, which are one of the best headphones that you can get. So, no matter what type of audio content you are listening to, whether it is background music or high quality movies, the B&O quality will be superb. The G5 will automatically adjust its bass based on 2edc1e01e8
